

2010 CPHB Spring Membership Meeting

Changing Trends for the Metro Atlanta Region and Beyond

Michael Alexander
Chief of Research Division

The Housing Institute invites you to join us for a look into the future of the Metro Atlanta and Georgia regions. Join us for a dialogue with the Atlanta Regional Commission (ARC) Chief of Research Division Michael Alexander.

Michael Alexander is the chief of research division for the Atlanta Regional Commission (ARC). As chief, Alexander manages the annual development of population and employment estimates for the ARC planning area. In addition, he develops long-range growth forecasts for the region and manages ARC's Geographic Information Systems efforts. Alexander has worked on numerous planning efforts for ARC including its latest planning process called Plan2040. Prior to joining ARC in 2001, Alexander worked in Alabama, Southern Carolina and Georgia in local government planning specializing in growth and development issues.
